1. The H. Cegielski factory, located at Poznan-Wilda, Poland, now employs around 8,000 workers and is engaged in the production of railway locomotives and other railway equipment for shipment to the Soviet Union.
2. During September of 1948 the third section or area (sic) of this factory was converted for the production of infantry machine guns, rifle parts, and parts for the Soviet automatic weapon known in Poland as the "Pepeshe".
3. Since the conversion of this section of the factory, all arms production has been exported directly to Albania.
